Biking Mexico and Guatemala 2017

Day 0, Saturday, November 11, 2017

Marty gave me a ride to the airport at around 3:00 AM and I arrived at Portland international airport (PDX) at about 3:15 AM. The line to check in for my flight was very long. It did not take long to get through the line. When I went through security, they let me go through Pre-check. My boarding pass was stamped for pre-check and this seems to happen to me often in the past few years (not sure why). I was concerned about catching my connecting flight in Houston, they only had scheduled 55 minutes between flight and the flight out of Houston was an international flight to Mexico. It turned out the plane arrived early in Houston and I did not have to go to a different terminal. I was expecting to go to an international gate and having to go through security. However, it was not like that, it was very easy. I left my gate and walked to a gate in a nearby airport wing and it was very close. Even my luggage arrived in time when I arrive in Acapulco, Mexico. I had no trouble going through the security/customs at Acapulco International Airport (ACA). The stamp on my passport did not look clear, I hoped that will not be a problem at the Guatemala boarder (at the Guatemala boarder they had trouble finding the stamp, I had to show it to them). I took a cab from ACA airport to the Ocean Breeze hotel where I had reservation, but the hotel was closed. The taxi driver found someone to ask and found I was being put up in a nearby hotel owned by the same company that owed the Ocean breeze hotel. Since I had prepaid for the Ocean Breeze hotel, they ended up having me stay at the Mayan Palace, very nice high-rise hotel for the same price I had paid. I walked the beach, bought groceries and found an ATM. I could not get my USAA debit card to work in the ATM. I ended up exchanging 200 USD for Mexican money at the hotel. I hoped I could get money next time I try the ATM card (The USAA debit card never worked on this trip, but my Chase debit card did work). Not sure if I had enough money without getting money from an ATM. (daily bike miles 0 miles; total bike miles 0 miles)

Day 1, Sunday, November 12, 2017

At about 3:00 AM I could hear an alarm going off, I thought it was my new alarm clock. It turned out that my new camera was still connected to my PC (I connected it to upload a phot to Facebook) and was not in changing mode, therefore the battery was low and casing an alarm on the camera. In the morning before leaving the hotel I found an e-mail from USAA about my debit card, they wanted me to call, but I have no phone. I also do not have my USAA password, so I cannot e-mail them. There was a collect number I could call on the e-mail and I should have had the hotel help me with that, but I wanted to get going and did not want the hassle. The ride out of Acapulco was a great road for about 17 miles, I took the road near the airport. A previous trip to Acapulco I remembered a big hill to get out of the city, the route near
